Soon we were on the highway and my arms were tight around Shade's waist in the way I'd held him back in high school, when he was first learning to ride. Too many years had passed since I'd last touched him like this—and chances were, I wouldn't get to hold on for long.

The boy I loved walked away from me to join a motorcycle club, because he knew it was the only way he'd be able to pull his family out of poverty and save his sick father. It took years for me to let him go--the way his skin felt against mine, the taste of his lips in winter--but I manged it. I put that life behind me.

Until I was kidnapped by his enemy and sold.

Now Shade is right on my trail and all I have to do is turn my head to see the hot blooded biker roaring down the highway behind us.

The boy I loved turned into a man who's out for blood if he can't get me back. But even if the club has changed--even if it's a life he'd let me into--I'm not sure I can let go enough to trust him again. Not when I already know what it's like to have him ripped out of my life.

But Shade's never been the kind of man to take a challenge lying down and he's decided that he wants me back for good.

This short, sexy motorcycle club story is about a beautiful black woman and a white man who love each other too much.
